Rainbow was not just beautiful—she was curious, too. Each day, she arched across the sky, dazzling everyone below with her bright colors. But Rainbow wondered, “Why am I made of so many colors? Where do they come from?”

One sunny morning, Rainbow met Sunny, a wise little raindrop. Sunny explained that when sunlight passes through raindrops like her, it splits into seven colors: Red, Orange, Yellow, Green, Blue, Indigo, and Violet. "We call you ROY G BIV," Sunny giggled. "It's like a secret code for your beautiful colors!"

Rainbow felt so excited to learn her special name, ROY G BIV. She tried saying it out loud: "R-O-Y G B-I-V!" It sounded like magic! Now she knew that she was more than just pretty—she was a colorful surprise created by sunlight and raindrops together.

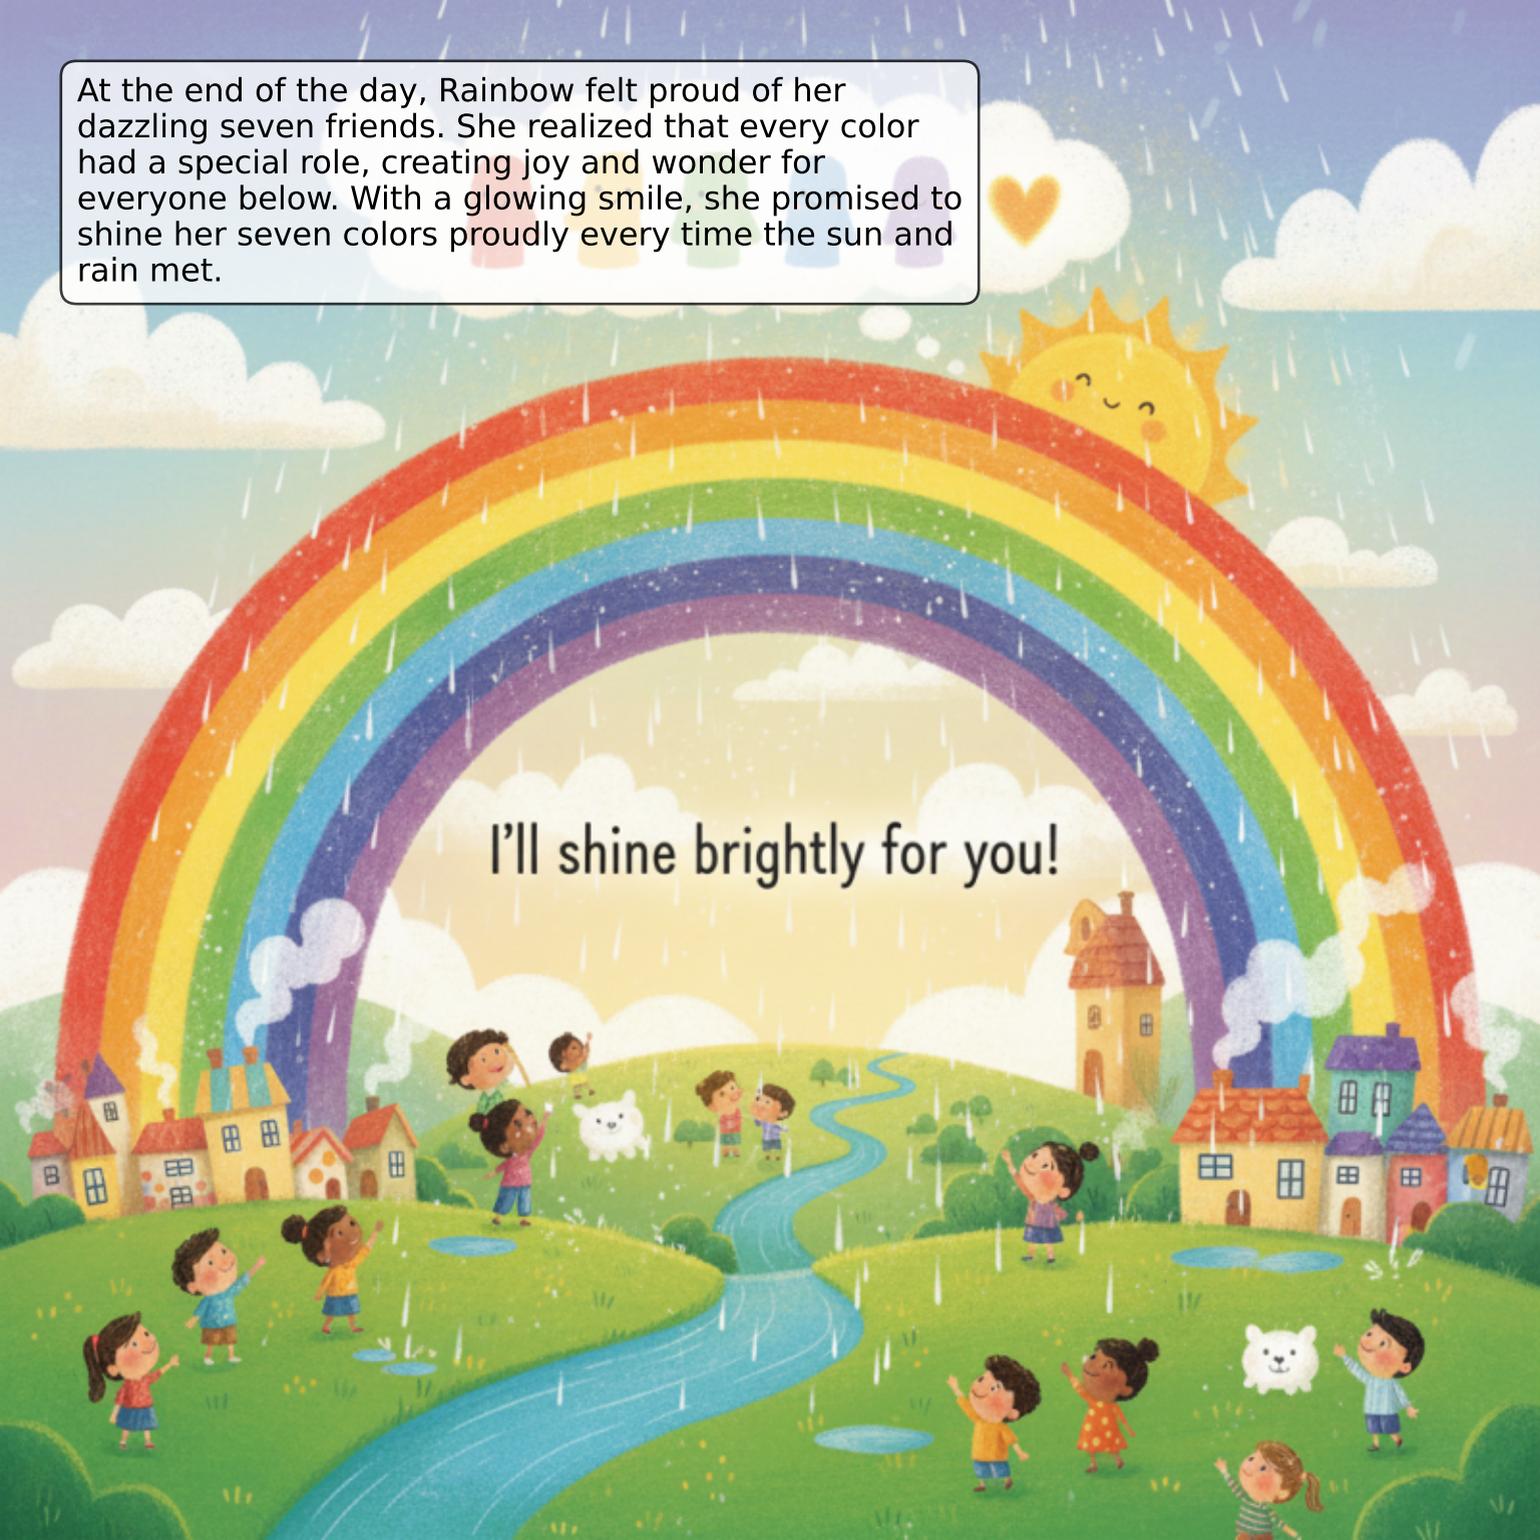

ROY G BIV!

For fun, Rainbow decided to play hide and seek with her colors. Red liked to wave at the sunrise, Orange loved bouncing in the evening light, Yellow twirled with the sunflowers, and Green danced among the leaves. Each color had its own favorite place, making Rainbow's arc a happy, colorful adventure.

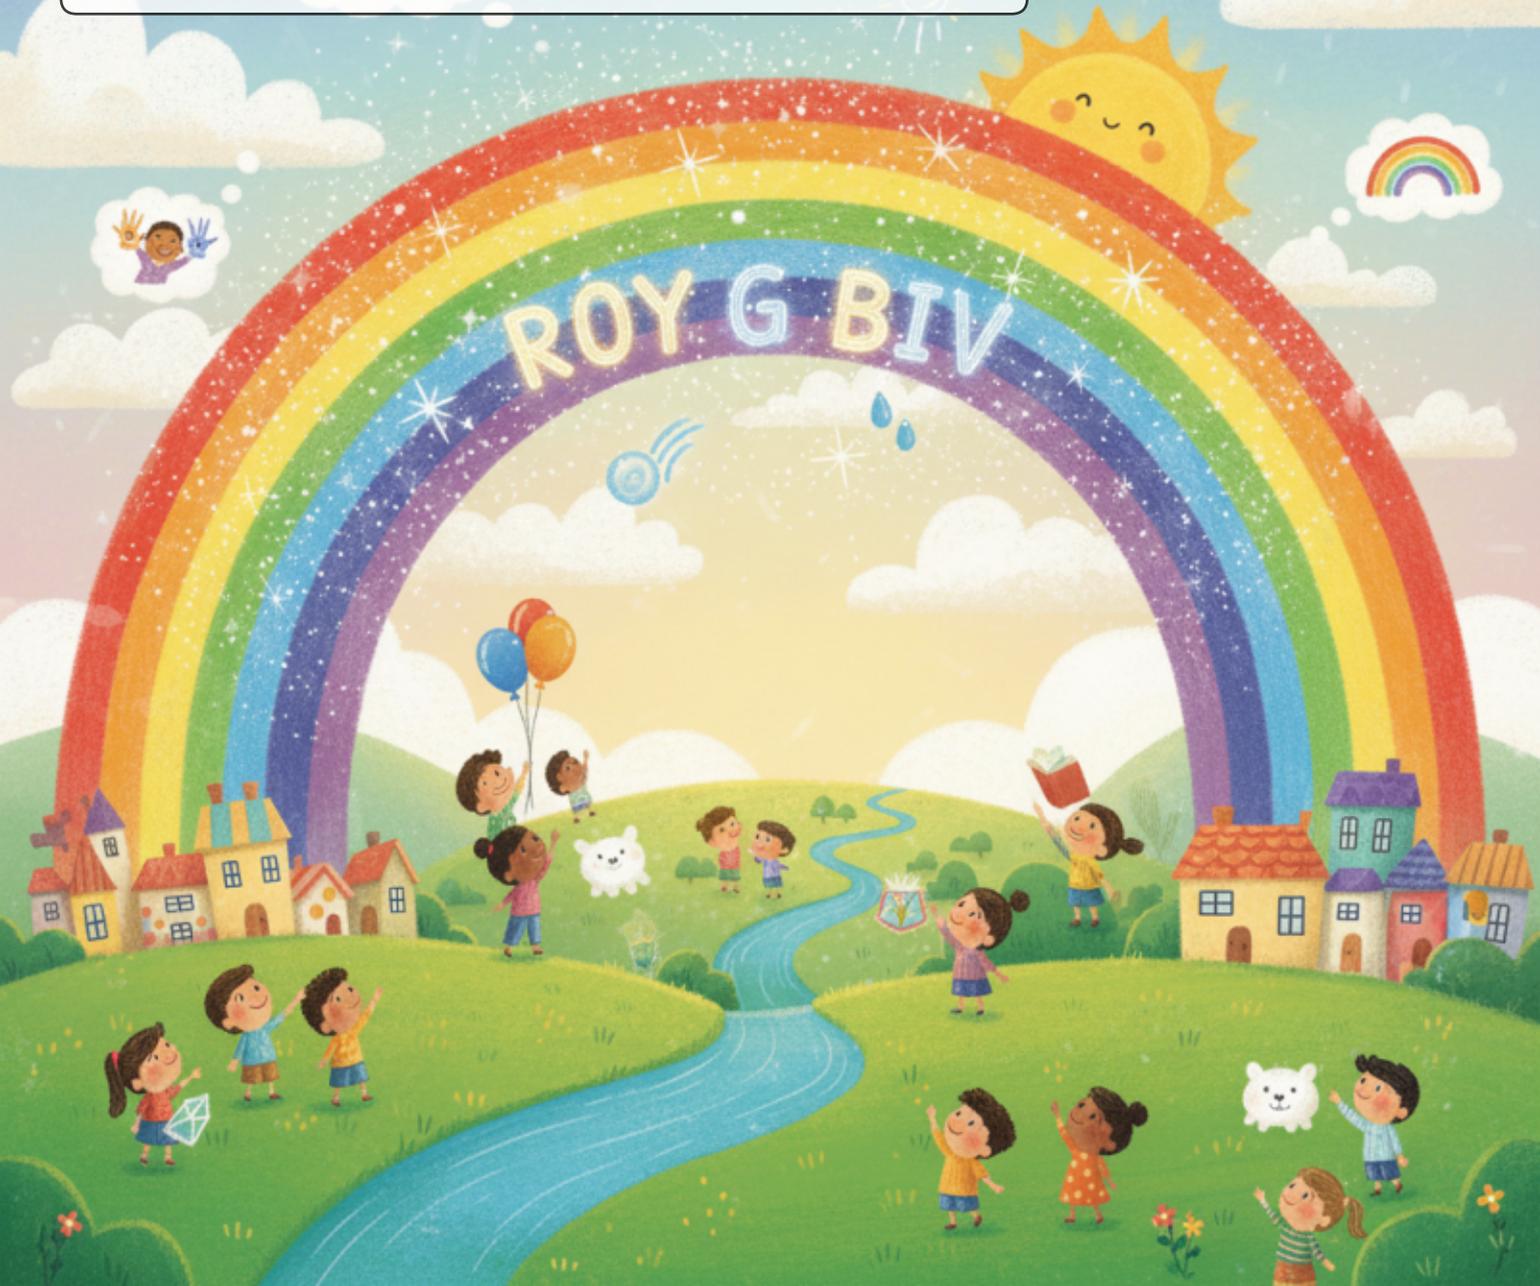

At the end of the day, Rainbow felt proud of her dazzling seven friends. She realized that every color had a special role, creating joy and wonder for everyone below. With a glowing smile, she promised to shine her seven colors proudly every time the sun and rain met.

I'll shine brightly for you!

From that day on, whenever children saw Rainbow stretch across the sky, they remembered the magic of ROY G BIV. And Rainbow, the beautiful color friend, happily shared her sparkling story about light and rain, lighting up the world with learning and laughter.
